GUN COTTON AFIRE.

, July 3.—The fire at the torpedo station was in the gun cotton factory situated on the island of Port Dexter, the west shore of the Island and slightly in the rear of the location as described from this city. It started about 10 not so an explosion, but as a fire ary and simple. Work was at once begun in removing the large quan building [illegible] place of safety, and it is believed that nearly the entire amount was gotten out by the regular force attached to the station. Before the work was entirely completed, however, fire reached a part of the gun cotton and an explosion followed, killing two men and injuring three others. Killed Frank Loughlin and Jeremiah Callington, aged 27 and 32 years respectively. Both belong to this city, and have been employed in the gun cotton factories at the station for some time . The injured—Michael Reagan, John T. Harrington, also of this , and Ensign E. F. Catchart, hurried to the station. The extent of the injuries being about the breast. A number of other men sustained injuries of a minor nature. Between the fire and explosion of gun cotton the factory is naturally a wreck, being levelled to the ground. It was a long narrow building, nearly 200 feet in length, and was erected some years since when the government began its experiments with the manufacture of gun cotton at the station here.

A BOLD, BAD MAN.

He Holds Up Seven Men Single Handed, and Pockets Cash and Watches.

, July 3.—Last night three masked men attempted unsuccessfully to hold up the Rio Grande Southern station agent at Rico, for the purpose of securing a large sum of money that was supposed to be in the safe. On Friday night last a successful raid was made by one man on the station at Manico, located on the same railway, some forty miles west of Durango. The robbery at Manico occurred at 9:10 Friday evening. A single man entering the depot in which were seven men besides the agent, H. N. Sprague. The robber was masked and his sudden appearance with a revolver in each hand so disconcerted the eight men that they quickly obeyed his command to hold up their hands. He kept them quiet by speaking to an imaginary party of his were supposed to be outside, and when the robber told to keep the station guard and his seven friends covered with their guns. The lone robber then secured about $200 in cash, and four gold watches from his victims. The cash belonged to the railroad company. He then quietly bid the eight kindly scared men good-night and left. It was then discovered that he was entirely alone and his frightened victims felt much embarrassed to think that they had been robbed by one man. There are hopes of capturing the heavy robber. The attempted robbery of the Rico station last night was frustrated by the agent, D. O. Heywood, and his wife, pluckily firing upon the three robbers with Winchesters as they were attempting to force the door. The would-be robbers quickly departed.

Affairs at the Stock Exchange to-day were extremely dull, the transactions reaching the paltry total of 77,[illegible] shares of which 8,[illegible] were unlisted. The absence of leading operators on the street as usual on the eve of the national holiday induced the traders who are heartily inclined to hammer the list at the opening, and especially as the early quotations from London showed considerable decline from Saturday night's final figures. Depositors Will Be Paid.

, July 3.—The American National Bank did not open its doors on this morning. Instead a notice was posted on the door which read as follows:

"Owing to impossibility of realizing on first-class securities this bank is compelled to suspend payment for a few days. All depositors will be paid in full."

Talk with the stockholders develops the fact that the bank is in a first-class condition, and that it will reopen again in a few days when it will be able to pay a hundred cents on the dollar. There is but little excitement over the matter, as it yet seems to be the belief of the majority of the depositors that everything will turn out all right. The directors of the bank made the following statement of its affairs: Resources, $[illegible]; liabilities, $[illegible]; excess, $[illegible]. This is the showing on our books, Saturday, July 1, at the close of business.

No Loss to Depositors.

, N. M., July 3.—The suspension of the Albuquerque National Bank will cause no loss to depositors, as the suspension is temporary. Even if otherwise the bank has not only paid up capital of $[illegible], a surplus of $[illegible], but its stock is held by more than one hundred wealthy men in Vermont, New York and other eastern States, who are liable to immediate assessment of their full amount of their $[illegible] stock holding, which would be paid over to depositors. The bank has besides a large line of assets of its own. The other two banks of this city are exceptionally strong and have large cash reserves and full confidence is expressed on every hand by the citizens and no runs whatever are being made, the First National having long been recognized as one of the largest and soundest banking institutions of the west, its footing being more than a million dollars, was fully prepared for any emergency.

SHERMAN TALKS

He Says the Repealers Must Not Go Too Far.

PARITY SHOULD BE MAINTAINED

The Great Need of the Time is the Restoration of Confidence—Danger of State Bank Legislation—Taxing Notes Out of Future Money.

, July 3.—"There never has been a time since the law of 1873 known as the Sherman act was passed that I would not have voted for its repeal," said Senator John Sherman, at the Lexington hotel to day. "The Sherman act was a compromise measure and it was passed to save the country from a free coinage bill that had been passed by the Senate by an overwhelming majority. The Democrats helped pass the Sherman bill and now they abuse it and blame it for all the financial woes of the nation. This is a sort of hypocrisy in a political party with which I don't sympathize. If the Sherman bill had not been passed a free coinage bill would have passed, and the result would have been infinitely more damaging to the country.

"Will you outline what you think should be done in the present crisis?

"No, I will not. I prefer to have President Cleveland and his advisers unembarrassed by my advice. I have told Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle that I will stand with them for a sound, safe, stable currency, and that I will do. But the present disposition of the silver question is a Democratic party issue. Mr. Cleveland in opposing silver is fighting three-fourths of his party. In 1890 the Democratic party was hell bent for free silver. South, west and everywhere they were silver men. Free silver was avoided only by the Sherman bill which they now abuse. Down in their hearts they were free coinage men, and many of them are so yet. I want to see how the Democrats will settle the matter before I take them at their word. I do not want to put any stones in the way of the Cleveland administration, which has a hard enough road to travel as it is. Of course I have my own ideas about what should be done, and when the matter comes up in Congress I will have my say. Until then I prefer to remain silent.

"Will the Sherman bill be repealed? [illegible] there are apt to be some warm expressions of opinion. I will not be surprised if some of the Democratic Congressmen and Senators would say things that would be disagreeable to Mr. Cleveland, and might consent to the repeal of the Sherman act only on condition that the administration might not favor. I make no predictions as to what Congress may do. When Congress meets and gets to work we can better judge of its probable action. But there are elements that will seek to force their views and policy on Congress. In the silver States and in many other States are Congressmen whose constituents believe in free coinage. What will the administration do if a free coinage rider be put on the repealing act? Down South they want more money, plenty of it, and they are not so very particular as to what kind of money it is. Lots of those fellows will be in favor of starting up the old printing presses that used to turn banknotes by the million before the war. How will the hard money Democrats like it if the repealing act be loaded with a free State bank amendment? These are only conjectures as to what might happen, but they indicate how the Democratic party stands on the monetary question. The Republicans in Congress will be in the attitude to a certain extent of the spectators, but we will, then be favored with a few exceptions of good money.

"I think the Sherman law will be repealed, but the danger is that Congress may go too far. If it only repeals the clause providing for the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver monthly it will be well. But if Congress should go on and repeal the clause providing that the United States shall maintain parity between gold and silver coins it would cause widespread distrust. There is in the treasury $[illegible] of coined silver dollars and $[illegible] in uncoined bullion. The legal tender of these coins must be preserved and their parity to gold maintained. It is well enough to stop the further mintage of silver, but that in circulation must be sustained. Foreign silver coins are not worth as much in proportion to their numerical or face value as are our silver dollars, but their ratio of 15½ to gold is kept up by the government's agreement that they shall be used as currency at a proportional value. The stoppage of making silver dollars would not impair the use of those already made so long as the government is back of them. Many newspapers seem to forget that for the bullion from which the currency silver dollars was coined, the government paid only the market price in gold at the date of purchase, so that those silver dollars coined under the Sherman act stand really on a gold basis, and the government can redeem them all in gold now with a loss of only about $3,000,000."

"The restoration of confidence in the commercial world. The stringency is caused by the apprehension of the mercantile and financial world that we will not meet our obligations in gold, but will pay in a cheap money. I believe that we should have a sound, safe currency on a gold basis. Nor I do not think the coinage of silver ought to be stopped, but bring gold more into circulation. I do not think that gold will ever again be so much in circulation. It will be utilized as the reserve and basis on which the circulating medium will rest for security. I think such a currency feasible, and I am of the opinion that it will be brought about. The action of India is not conclusive. It is in the nature of an experiment. The law that the silver rupee shall be worth 16d is in the nature of fiat money legislation and has no effect here. Neither do I think the India council acted to aid Great Britain to force the United States to a gold basis, for all the great commercial nations have tried silver and have failed at it. The United States is the last of them to realize that silver cannot be made the basis and standard of the world's money. If the coinage of silver dollars were stopped and the [illegible] position of subsidiary coinage, as in other nations, the world would know that we propose to pay our debts in the world's money—gold—and confidence would be restored. The exportation of gold to Europe is brought about by the balance of trade being against us. When confidence is restored the gold will come back. If Congress acts conservatively, and does not go too far in radical legislation, all will be well.

"As to the future currency?

"Well, I think the national bank system will large, when our national debt shall have been paid off and there are no bonds to be used as security or basis for bank notes. I do not attempt to guess the details of the system that will follow it. But I think that no money should be allowed in this country which has not back of it the full guarantee of the United States government. Treasury notes to be used in such manner as to meet the needs of the people would serve the purpose."

GOT ITS $1,500.

The city council met in regular session last evening. Mayor Strickler presided and all the aldermen were present.

After the reading of the minutes the following petitions were received: Mrs. E. Farrington asked that the pavilion at the end of the Cheyenne canon car line be sold at a reasonable price. Alderman Finegan said that the persons who had defied the council. The discussion which followed showed that a strong feeling prevailed between the two pavilion keepers at Cheyenne canon. Mr. Dana said that Mr. Holmes had received too many privileges for keeping the roads, etc., in repair. So did Alderman Gillingham and he thought the action of last meeting granting the right to Holmes should be rescinded. It was developed that there was no written contract with Holmes, and the matter was referred to the public grounds committee.

The bond of Paul Shearer, the new chief of police, was approved. The resignation of George W. Musser as police magistrate were accepted, the resignation to take effect upon the election of his successor.

E. J. Smith's application for a saloon license was granted. C. W. Church's application for a dance house license was also granted.

The Sons of Veterans' invitation to participate in their parade was accepted. The Council will ride in carriages.

The report of Hook and Ladder No. 1 was accepted.

Alderman Dunbar called up his resolution appropriating $1,500 to the use of the Chamber of Commerce, for use in advertising the city.

Alderman Finegan renewed his objections to the granting of the appropriation for a city on paper; the Board of Commerce did nothing for laboring men, so Alderman Finegan said. He threatened to enjoin the treasurer from paying the money.

Alderman Robinson said no worse blow could be given to labor than to shut out men of money or not to get them here. He gave some statistics of the work of the Chamber of Commerce, over forty-five thousand pamphlets having been distributed in the last year. There was a wide-spread desire to know more of the city as a health resort. Other cities were advertising it and Colorado Springs must. He read some samples of one day's mail making inquiries from all over the country and London, showing the necessity of advertising; and for continuing the work of the Chamber of Commerce. The alderman made a strong speech in favor of the appropriation.

Secretary Buckman made a brief speech showing the necessity of keeping up advertising. Ouray was a resort city, Manitou and other cities spent much more than we did. In answer to the Mayor, Mr. Buckman told of the work which the Chamber had done last summer during Conclave time. For $2,500 they had done much to entertain visitors, who had left, it is estimated by banking men, $[illegible],000 in the Pike's Peak region. Other than that 25,000 people had gone forth to say a good word for the city.

Alderman Taylor said that the appropriation ordinance had been passed including the $1,500 for this purpose. He read the names voting in favor, including Alderman Finegan.

Alderman Finegan got up and with his finger pointing upward, dramatically said, "I never voted for that."

A vote was then taken on the passage of the resolution as follows: Ayes—Aldermen Dunbar, Robinson, Hoyt, Bumstead, Gillingham, Lloyd, Taylor. Nays—Aldermen Finegan, Leech, Huffman, 3.

The committee on fire department recommended the purchase of lot and house to cost $[illegible], near Washington avenue, West side, for the Perrin hose house. Referred to public grounds and fire department committees to secure an option on suitable property.

Colonel Ensign addressed the City Council with reference to securing public park lands. He said Willow park was about ready to be deeded to the city and that the Colorado Springs company was also ready to deed lands along Monument creek for park purposes as soon as surveys were made. They asked for the assistance of City Engineer Reid to survey the land.

Mr. Geo. H. Parsons said the proposal was to take in the land along the Monument from Dorchester park to Boswell, but first from Bijou street north.

The city engineer was requested to make such surveys as the Park association in their economic discretion thought best. Carried.

A resolution was introduced by Alderman Leech, instructing the city attorney to commence condemnation proceedings to open up West Pike's Peak avenue, across the land of Henry T. Williams. Resolution adopted.

The Council then authorized the printing of as many copies of the water reports of Mr. Herring and the general committee as they deemed necessary, the same to be done by The Gazette Printing company, the city printers. The same committee was authorized to have the twenty-five loose ordinances printed and bound into the supplements for in number, at once.

An ordinance to cover the misdemeanor of urinating upon the interior walls of floors of hotels or other public buildings was authorized and passed under suspension of rules.

Another ordinance, making it a misdemeanor to blast rocks or tie horses to trees; to get drunk or to fight; to use profanity, or to expose the person in Cheyenne park, and to regulate hack fare in Cheyenne park, went over under the rules.

The usual batch of bills was allowed and the Council adjourned to Thursday, July 6.

And Still They Go.

DANA'S STARR ACT.

IT IS THE STARR GANG

Henry Starr and Kid Wilson the Chieftains of Train Robbers, Will Find Only Sorrow for Their Crimes—Over $2,000 Recovered.

The Colorado Springs police on Sunday captured Henry Starr, the bank and train robber, and one of his gang, and recovered over two thousand dollars of their booty. They are now enjoying their triumph in the congratulations showered upon them both by home people and officers all over the country. The Starr gang has been operating for a year or more in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Southern Kansas, robbing banks, holding up trains and doing big jobs of holding up travelers generally. At Bentonville, Ark., last winter they robbed a bank and got a big haul. Their latest known job was the stopping of a Santa Fe train at Cimarron, Kans., on June 16, where they robbed the Wells Fargo express and shot the messenger. It is also thought they did the work at Chelsea.

Saturday night two young men and a woman alighted from the Santa Fe train at 12 and went to the Spaulding house where they registered as Frank Jackson, Mary Jackson and John Willson, Joplin, Mo. The writing was that of very ignorant people and the name intended for Wilson was incorrectly spelled. The clerk at the hotel is from Joplin but the guests refused to talk home matters with him, although he did not recognize them as from his section. Sunday the two men went to Oppenheimer's clothing store on Huerfano street and purchased a suit of clothing, gold watches and other trinkets. They displayed considerable money and it was noticed that both carried heavy revolvers. They grew quite friendly with the Oppenheimers and finally asked them to go for a drive to the Garden of the Gods and Manitou, and the invitation was accepted. A carriage was secured and the four men accompanied by Mrs. Jackson, or Mrs. Starr, went out for the afternoon.

In the meantime information was brought to Marshal Dana that this party was Henry Starr and one of his gang. How the information was brought it is not definitely known, but it was believed to be reliable, and so proved. He got his men together and prepared for the capture. It was thought that perhaps both men would have to be taken together and perhaps a street battle, which would likely mean a fight. A round was secured on Tejon street near the Buckeye livery and four men placed there armed with shot guns loaded with buckshot. A close watch was kept all the afternoon.

About 6 o'clock the party returned from their drive. Starr and his wife went at once to the Spaulding house and Wilson went to the livery stable with the Oppenheimers. Later he started for Colorado City. As it was known he could be found and [illegible] he was permitted to go. Starr remained in his room at the hotel until nearly 8 o'clock, when he came down and asked if it was too late to get something to eat. Being assured that it was he asked to be shown to a restaurant. Then he started up Tejon street, but cut across and went on the east side. Had he gone up the west side the arrest would have been made at the place where the men were concealed. He went first to Mr. McGregor's restaurant, then across to the north side of Huerfano street, and finally diagonally across to the Coffee Royal on the south side of the street. Officer Joel Atkinson had been at the hotel and followed all of Starr's actions. All of the officers were in citizen's clothing. Atkinson gave warning and Mr. Dana, accompanied by Captain Gathright and Officers Harlan and Taylor, followed. Starr went into the lunch room of the Cafe Royal and seated himself on a stool, placing his elbows on the counter. Policeman Atkinson went in behind him, followed by Mr. Dana, and Mr. Gathright. Dana seized his right arm and Gathright his left and before he could make a move he was looking down the barrels of five revolvers. A large gun with a white handle was taken from him, and as it was taken Starr said, "It is a good thing for you that you get that first, or I would have shown you a touch of high life on the frontier." Starr was taken to the city jail and placed under guard. A reporter spoke to him a short time after and called him "Starr," when he asked him not to let the other men in the cell know who he was.

Starr being captured, the next thing was to secure Wilson, and Mr. Dana and Captain Gathright went to Colorado City. They met young Oppenheimer who told them Wilson was at a house of prostitution. Taking two of the Colorado City police they went to the house and learned that he was in one of the rooms. The landlady called to have the door opened and as it was opened Dana and Gathright pushed their way in. Gun in hand they rushed upon Wilson, who was standing in the room. He seized the barrels of both guns and said not to shoot. The Colorado City officers followed close behind and Wilson was soon overpowered. He pretended not to know what he was held for, but when he learned that his partner was captured remarked that there would not have been so many policemen on earth if they had been taken together. One of his remarks was, "Pardner, you haven't got me a bit rattled. I've been expecting this." His revolver was found under a pillow.

He told the truth, for cooler men were never arrested. They continued to taunt the police until finally locked up in the jail. Wilson seemed to be the shrewder man of the two. Starr was ready to talk until he came. About 1 o'clock the men were taken to the county jail where they were placed in separate cells under a strong guard. Until the last they kept up a string of talk and abuse of their captors.

After the men were secured the next thing was to examine their effects. The officers went to the Spaulding house and a GAZETTE representative accompanied them. Mrs. Starr was found in bed and was permitted to stay there. The officers had heard that the men had two [illegible] for those first. They raised up the pillow under Mrs. Starr's head and found a big package of paper money. Then they went through the satchels and in Mrs. Starr's found a bag containing $700 in gold. Mr. Dana did not care to take all the responsibility with so much money and asked the GAZETTE representative to count it, which he did, making notes of the denominations. There were two $100 bills, forty-eight $5 bills, one hundred $10 bills and one $20 bill. In the gold there were twenty-two $20 pieces and six $10 pieces. This made a total of $1,200, and with $115 taken from the men a grand total of over $2,000. To make this money safe Policeman Harlan took it and locked himself in the county jail until yesterday morning, when it was placed in a safety deposit vault.

During the search for the money Mrs. Starr was questioned. At first she was inclined to refuse to reply. She mentioned that she was Mrs. Jackson of Joplin. Finally Mr. Dana said, "You are too good looking a girl to be with the Starr gang. Did you not know you would get into trouble some day?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but I did not expect it would be anything like this."

"You knew Starr had killed a man, didn't you?"

"Yes, but he did it in self defense," was the reply.

Mrs. Starr claimed the money found under the pillow was hers and was given to her by her father, who she says lives in Kansas, about two hundred miles away. Noting that the money was all nearly new and largely of the same character THE GAZETTE man turned to Mrs. Starr, and said, "Was this money taken from the bank?" She replied, "No, but maybe the gold was." That belongs to my husband."

Mrs. Starr stated that she had been married at Joplin six months ago and that she had known Henry Starr ever since he was a boy. She gave his age as 19 years. She is a rather pretty young woman, about 17 years of age, and apparently not yet hardened by her associations. She said they did not come here from Missouri, but down through the South, she did not know where. It is known they [illegible] Kansas last week. Mrs. Starr was not placed under arrest, but is still at the hotel. She was getting pretty nervous, and would have told the whole story until yesterday morning early when a lawyer of the county hired himself to her, and she refused to talk thereafter. The lawyer presented an order from her upon Mr. Dana for the money yesterday but he did not get it, as Starr also claims the money.

Henry Starr is a half blood Indian and is five feet six inches tall. He appears to be about 22 years of age. He has a dark complexion, dark hair and eyes, showing his Indian blood. He has the wildest looking eyes ever seen in a human head. He is apparently not very strong and stoops slightly. "Kid" Wilson, as he is known, is five feet high, light hair and complexion. He is bright and quick. In fact he seems to be the pale with bank and train robbers they are little more than boys. They look like young ranch boys in their Sunday clothes.

There are rewards offered for Starr and his men, aggregating over $[illegible]. How much Mr. Dana and his men will get of this is a question. A Santa Fe special agent arrived in the city yesterday and is ready to take the men. Yesterday United States Marshal Crump telegraphed from Ft. Smith, Ark., that papers had been forwarded, and Deputy United States Marshal Brown arrived from Denver to take charge of the men for him and Wells-Fargo agents will come to-day. To-day two witnesses will arrive from Cimarron to identify the men. Starr began his career at Ft. Smith by killing a deputy United States marshal. They were here evidently to rest and enjoy the scenery and were spending their money at a lively rate.

Altogether the capture is the biggest piece of criminal work done in this State in many a day, and the police deserve all the praise they are getting.

CELEBRATE TO-DAY.

The Arrangements for the Encampment and Celebration.

The advance guard of the Sons of Veterans arrived yesterday. There were a score or more of the boys who came in to arrange matters for their friends in Denver, Pueblo and Canon who are expected by the hundreds to-day.

The day was spent by the members of the Colorado Springs corps in making final arrangements for the encampment which will be in full swing to-day. The encampment grounds, near Colonel De La Vergne's place in Libue, have been put in good order. Fifty-five sleeping tents have been erected and also a large tent in which the sessions of the encampment will be held. The boys will eat and sleep upon the grounds while here.

The final arrangements for the fireworks exhibit at the College park tonight were also made. A large number of visitors are expected. The excursion from Pueblo will number at least 1000, and that from Denver will fully equal it. There will be many visitors from other points. They will arrive about 10:30 a. m.

The reception in Durkee hall on Wednesday evening will be much interest, over 500 invitations having been issued.

A reception and other committees have been appointed to entertain visiting members of the order. The sessions of the annual meeting will be held on Wednesday and Thursday in G. A. R. Hall.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

Independence Day is still the great American holiday. Other holidays we have, and more of them than there were a dozen or twenty years ago, but the Fourth retains its old pre-eminence. And as the years go by, it has gathered up into itself patriotic memories that make it much more than a mere celebration of the Declaration of Independence. On this day we celebrate now, not merely our severance from the motherland, but our national growth and progress since that time. On this day we renew yearly our glad pledge of fidelity to country and draw fresh inspiration from a survey of the deeds of our forefathers.

It is a good custom this celebration of our nation's birthday. It disturbs nervous people, and is sometimes a bore by the highly cultured, but it does more good than harm. Many an American youth in the days before the war imbibed upon the village green from the reading of the Declaration from the impassioned words of some orator known only to local fame, from the general spirit and air in the community that love of country which led him to devote his life to the preservation of the Republic. Thousands of our own youth today are learning similarly perhaps, but none the less thoroughly—the same lesson of loyalty and love.

Thirty years ago today a new and deeper significance was engrafted upon our national holiday. On that day the hosts of the Confederacy were beaten back from loyal soil, never more to return. On that day Grant announced to a waiting nation the news of the capture of Vicksburg and of the entire army that defended it. Since that day the names of Gettysburg and Vicksburg, of Meade and of Grant, are associated inseparably with the glory of the Fourth, and so long at least as a single veteran is alive who took part in those struggles, the preservation of the Republic will be celebrated equally with the Declaration of Independence.

This year we celebrate the day under peculiar conditions. Events have happened within a short time that put many of our people in anything but a joyful humor. The political fortunes of the nation are committed to a party which is profoundly distrusted, and under whose guidance thus far the nation has lost in wealth, in prosperity and in prestige. But to-day let us remember that we are all Americans first, whether we are Republicans or Democrats or Populists or Prohibitionists. This glorious country, this free government, these beneficent institutions, belong to us all, not as partisans, but as citizens of the public. Leaving aside party feeling, therefore, let us rejoice together that we have the best country on earth, and the best form of government, the best opportunities for individual happiness, the best promise for the future, and to the continuance of the blessings won for us by our forefathers, let us like them pledge anew "our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

OUR FORTUNATE POSITION

Some of the other cities of the State are congratulating themselves upon their fortunate position in the present general stringency. The Boulder Camera, for instance, points out that Boulder is not dependent upon silver mining for its prosperity. The New Castle Nonpareil boasts of the resources of coal and iron and other minerals in and near New Castle. The Denver Republican points to the manufactures and trade of the capital city. The Pueblo Chieftain asserts that the "Pittsburg of Colorado" will continue to grow and prosper notwithstanding the depression.

We are glad to hear these notes of encouragement, and to join with them heartily. Certainly no city in the State is better situated to withstand the present trouble than our own. With the exception of the Mollie Gibson, which is in hands that can afford to carry it until the upward turn that is bound to come, there is scarcely any silver mining stock held here. Most of our mining interests, aside from that, are in gold mines, which will not be influenced by the silver panic, and which may possibly be improved. Our banks are firm as a rock, our business houses are well established, our population grows, and the tide of health seekers is setting as strongly as ever this way. We all have confidence in our city, and feel sure of its continued growth and prosperity.

While we deplore the blow that has fallen upon sister cities like Leadville and Aspen and sympathize with them deeply, we cannot help feeling thankful on this day of celebration that we are in a more fortunate situation.

A WORD OF CAUTION

Every Fourth of July brings its awful harvest of destruction. It is a good thing to feel our independence a good thing, perhaps, to do it with fire crackers and other explosives, but it is not a good thing to allow these explosives to secure to buildings and destroy property.

In the present condition of our water supply there is need of especial care to-day lest a conflagration be started in some part of the city, and more particularly as a majority of the members of the fire companies will probably at least in the afternoon be absent at Manitou.

It will be well therefore for juvenile enthusiasm in the direction of fire crackers to be curbed by parental supervision, and especial care should be taken not to allow the burning of any sort of explosives in the alleys near barns and outbuildings. This is a matter that parents can attend to better than the city authorities, and they should be willing to give up some of their time for such a necessary purpose.

This evening, when the fire works are set off upon the College campus, there will be need of caution and those in charge should see to it that the explosives are handled by prudent and capable persons. Unless we are protected through the day without a single disaster.

Lieutenant Peary has started upon his second expedition to Greenland taking with him a party of about the same size as before. His first expedition included a trip across Arctic exploration and he will hope that he will be successful in reaching and that he will be able to push still further toward the Pole.

The State of South Carolina went into the liquor business on Sunday and thereafter will sell to its own citizens all the liquor they consume. The result of the experiment will be watched with interest by all friends of temperance.

Let us hope that day at least the calamity howlers will give us a rest. The people of our country are better off to-day than those of any other upon the earth and we all know it.

The election of a Republican mayor in Milwaukee, by a majority of 1,500 is one of the cheering signs of the times. Wisconsin is not in the Democratic column to stay.

We congratulate the Council on its action granting $120 to the Chamber of Commerce for advertising the city.

A Protest Against Fireworks

To the Editor of The Gazette:

Dear Sir: In view of the scare statement made by Professor Strieby at the meeting of the Citizens Improvement society with regard to fire and insufficient water supply and in consideration of the excessive dryness of the season, is it not inviting calamity to allow fireworks on July 4th? I understand there is to be a city display on the College campus, and such property owner in the neighborhood, I protest.

Yours truly,
R. WAGNER,
12 College Place.

Republics are Not Ungrateful

To the Editor of The Gazette:

And here comes a South ender again not growling and complaining, but with praise and thanksgiving to our Mayor and water committee who so quickly came to our relief when we presented to them our wishes in regard to supplying us with more water. They have done nobly and we now have all the water we could hope or wish for. Many thanks.

A TAXPAYER.

Agriculture and Fruit

It is not true that the success of agriculture in this State is so dependent upon the silver mining interest that it would become unprofitable if the silver mines were to be shut down permanently. The same may be said in respect of horticulture. [Denver Republican.

Ignorant Celebration of the Fourth of July

The fact that our heroes fought for freedom and bled and died for it, should be brought to mind and their names should be hallowed in perpetual remembrance. But if we would crown their conquest, we must give no regard to the good for which they did battle, but to the circumstance of their death. The ordinary procedure of celebrating the 4th of July is to hold up as models of patriotic success, careless of the consequences, the gain from the Christian church, the [illegible] of the [illegible] of its founder is a little concerned with the truth for which it really gave its life. A look of pity and fasting with dramatic repetition of the betrayal and crucifixion of the Redeemer may merely bring with it a sensation of devotion and gratitude. But far more important would be a fact of study of the deep meaning of his words and works. It makes one sick at heart to think of the formal rehearsal of great events by those who have no understanding of their true significance and can therefore claim for it no small part in their real benefit.—Julia Ward Howe in July Forum.

Our New Battleship

The Massachusetts is the second of our great war vessels launched, her sister ship the Indiana having been launched last February. These vessels merit more than a passing notice [illegible] the United States sufficiently powerful to cope with the first rates of Europe. Sir John Columb [illegible] said, in a discussion of military operations, that "decisive and defensive" there is a golden mean, to neglect which is certain ruin. Congress and our Navy Department [illegible] the Massachusetts [illegible] this maxim, for such a type of ship is to be an intelligent compromise between the modern high sided cruiser and the low freeboard Monitor. The mission of battleships of this class is not merely to protect our sea coast, but to act as patrol vessel to a fleet dispatched upon distant service—in other words, to carry the war into the enemy's territory.

Though the Massachusetts will have a displacement of only 10,000 tons to that of 11,000 in the latest English designs, she is immeasurably superior to them in battery and armor. The American guns and gunners will fight behind armored turrets, barbettes and shields, while the Englishman will be forced to work his battery in the open. Though the vitals of both will be protected by armor, the foreigners carry compound as against our nickel steel, despite the fact that the superiority of the latter has been demonstrated upon more than one occasion.

Again in most of the recently launched English ships their guns load in only one position. The necessitates their turning to and from this position after each fire—a very serious defect in a warship, as a shot from a rapid fire battery might disable one of the larger guns. The batteries of the American vessels loads in every position which enables them to keep the muzzles of their guns always pointed toward the enemy.

The Massachusetts will carry a battery of four 16 inch breech loading rifles, eight of 8 inches, four of 6 inches, twenty 4 pounders, four 1 pounders and two Gatlings. The 16 inch guns will be mounted in pairs on the center line, and in turrets protected by seven inches of steel. The 8 inch guns will be mounted in barbettes protected by ten inches of steel, with shields to cover both guns and gunners. The four 6 inch guns will be protected by five inches of steel. It will be seen that to concentrate the fire of both the main and auxiliary batteries on either bow or quarter, and ammunition will be supplied to each gun protected tubes.

The forward [illegible] of the Massachusetts consists of an inverted [illegible], which is placed three feet forward of the [illegible] and a half feet below the water line. At the end of this belt are armored bulkheads, fifteen inches thick extending three and a half feet above the main deck. The latter protects the turning gear of the turret, and all the loading machinery. In addition to this the [illegible] armored with seventeen inches of nickel steel.—Harper's Weekly.

THE BOSS TEACHER

We had a little school in our neighborhood. There is a fact that the boys were in mischief. I never intended to hit him [illegible] He therefore closed his eyes, folding his arms, fell into a reverie, apparently oblivious of the world. Presently he opened his eyes, and with a mischievous expression [illegible]

He never [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible] one of the [illegible] astonishing [illegible] All of us have seen a fighter. When he [illegible] we [illegible]

When I have seen the fighter [illegible] Well, after school [illegible] "Why did you hit [illegible]?" [illegible]

Last Sunday morning we [illegible] I went yesterday [illegible] I [illegible] the [illegible] fight this morning.

Having [illegible] the [illegible] as we sported [illegible] carefully [illegible] I was invited to describe the encounter which he had witnessed.

It was like this, he began quietly. Mick Fred Schultz was coming up the avenue to the school house when I heard a great yelping behind a McCall's [illegible] Jim and I looked from the fence and there was a fight going on between a black dog and a tight good all by themselves. I just stuck my head into the school house and hollered "Git on to the fight!" and in a jiffy the school house commenced to empty out the back door, leaving enough behind to approve an awful ring round the dogs.

So the story went and every boy in turn matched it with another brief circumstantial and vivid account, and all commanding closest attention from the entire class.

When the last story was completed, the teacher began to ask questions after the Socratic method in some such wise as this:

"Do you like a dog?"

"What do you call a good dog?"

"What do you like about a good dog?"

"Would you like to be a dog?"

"Would a good dog make a good boy?"

"What is the difference between a dog and a boy?" and so on.

It was a success. The boys leaned in toward the teacher and listened intently and answered his questions freely. There was no more disorder in class. No idle neighboring teachers turned about in their seats and looked with undisguised astonishment and immeasurable relief. The superintendent smiled a delighted smile.

"Don't I know human nature?" quoth he.

Before the sharp stroke of the bell announced the closing exercises Thomas Jones had given his pupils a lesson that they never will forget on the moral nature of man, the immortality of the soul and the sinfulness and danger of sin, and had pointed them to the Saviour of the world.

"Say, fellers," one little elf up observed to the others as they were going out, "say, fellers, this de boss teacher."—Congregationalist.

Children [illegible]

A lady in Victoria told me that she moved from one house to another and employed a new servant. [illegible] next morning [illegible] afternoon. The next morning [illegible] day. Puzzled and worried, she persuaded one who was about to leave her to tell her why he was dissatisfied. He took her to the sink in the kitchen and showed her a [illegible] chalk under the sink. It was a certain sign by one servant to all the others that the head of the house was not kind or honest in his dealings with his servants.

[illegible] that she had just moved into the house and the servant took off his street apparel and remained with her. But he told her that whenever a Chinaman came to work in a new place he always looked through all the pots and pans and kettles and cupboards for some piece of paper or mark of some kind left by preceding servants and explained the character of the house.—Julian Ralph in Harper's Weekly.

Power In a Pound of Coal

A curious and interesting calculation has been made by Professor Rogers of Washington on the dynamic power of coal. According to his deductions a pound of good steam coal has within it dynamic power equivalent to the work of one man for a period of 10 hours. Three tons of similar coal represent a man's labor for a period of several years. One square mile of a seam of coal having a depth of only 4 feet represents power equal to that expended by 1,000,000 men 10 hours each day for 20 years. Such calculations as these made by Mr. Rogers may serve to remind us how very wasteful our methods of burning fuels must be, in spite of all that has been done in the fuel saving line by the inventors and economists.—Philadelphia Press.

Why He Wasn't Cured

on the little pile of pebbles, too, were irresistibly fascinated by the cle. Their eyes are so well trained that they can tell a diamond pebble as far as they can see it, and they find it impossible to repress the impulse to sing out to the sorter whenever they see one. They are like children who can't keep their eyes away from the goodies nor their tongues still in their heads when the candy is pass around.

A pan of dirt usually brings out about two diamonds, though such a thing as an average is hard to determine. Some pans produce nothing at all. The sorter scans every pebble eagerly, pawing the pebbles over, over and over with never a sight of one that looks as if it might have anything of value concealed within. The next pan may show the same barrenness of results, and the next, and by this time the patience of the workmen and the spectators are sorely tried. But the fourth pan, perchance, will prove itself rich in jewels. Five or six, and sometimes as many as twelve, diamonds are taken from a single pan of the pulverized earth. Then the eyes of the big Zulus dance.

But how the sorter determines which are diamond pebbles and which are not is something that the uninitiated cannot understand. Occasionally a diamond pebble shows what it is so that no one could mistake it. Oftenest it is covered more or less of its surface, though not brilliant, rather a dull, greenish gray, without glitter or beauty. But many more show no signs of the value concealed within their brown or black exteriors. It matters not how black and dull the outside, the sorter is supposed to know by some sort of instinct, something in the touch or feel of the pebble, whether it is worth laying carefully aside for further investigation or whether it shall be permitted to pass away with the refuse. His vision is so acute, his instinct so perfect or his touch so accurate, or in some way he is able to do his work so unerringly, that the manager of the exhibit said he wouldn't give a dollar a ton for the pebbles that had passed the skilled sorter's inspection.

There is a pile of rock here which one would like to get his fingers on. It is about as big as a strong man could run away with by the help of a good bag, and in the dark mass may be seen imbedded five or six of the opalescent pebbles, each a good-sized diamond. It would be so easy to lean forward and pick one or two of them out with a jack-knife and possibly some one would do it if the big, shiny Zula didn't stand there with an eye on forty people at once.

Now the rough diamonds are turned over to the polishers or lapidaries. The first thing the skilled workman does is to make a study of the stone. He turns it over and over in his hands lovingly and thoughtfully. Then he measures its surfaces. Finally he puts it under a lathe and begins to grind away its outer covering. In Europe, where most of the diamond-cutting is done, all the work is performed by hand, but this would not do for America. Our inventors have devised little machines, each making 2,000 revolutions a minute, which grind the diamonds down to the size and form which may prove to their best advantage. All this work is done behind glass cases. It is a hot place for the operators, and one cannot blame them for putting in but three or four hours a day. Usually they work from ten to twelve in the morning and from two to four in the afternoon, at which hours it is best to go to the Cape Town display. The last stage of all is the polishing of the stone. This is done with the dust which has accumulated from the earlier or dressing processes, and is literally an illustration of the adage that it takes a diamond to cut a diamond.

The third part of the Cape Town exhibit, and one which interests many visitors, is found near the machines. It consists of pictures and models of the mines and processes used in Africa, and specimens of the ore. Polite attendants are always here to show and explain. In the Manufacture building, right next to the clock tower, a New York firm shows more than a million dollars' worth of diamonds in a space not to exceed forty feet square. It is like a dream of beauty and magnificence. Across the aisle the French have a display almost as rich and beautiful. Here of course the crowds are always so thick that one is lucky indeed if he can get near enough to see without waiting an hour for his turn.

MINES AND STOCKS.

Notes Concerning Mining Properties in Which Our Readers Are Interested.

Work was somewhat quiet. Broker Pettingell reports the sale of 10,000 shares at 3c.

Calumet was somewhat in demand and a number of good sales were made at 3 and 3½c.

The market yesterday was somewhat improved, with more evidences of strength all along the line.

Mollie Gibson was a good seller yesterday and was in demand at from $2.80 to $3 up to 3 o'clock, when the price dropped a notch to $2.70.

The Fannie Rawlings property at Leadville has been closed down for the present, owing to the smelters refusing to purchase ore.

Two adverse suits were filed yesterday in the District Court. The Baby June adverses the Big Theatre and the Manhattan and Gettysburg adverses the Wellington and Little Nellie.

Jack Segrist and a Mr. Newkirk were exhibiting some nice looking amethyst quartz yesterday from their Bell J. claim at Turkey Creek. It was taken from near the surface. Assays have not yet been made, but it is thought to be good stuff.

CRIPPLE CREEK TO THE FRONT.

A well-known mining and smelter man who was in the city yesterday discussed the situation as follows: "I think that Cripple Creek will see its liveliest days just as soon as money eases up a little. In my opinion all of the valley smelters will continue to run some of their furnaces, no matter what becomes of silver, for the reason that they can take ores running high in lead and low in silver. They can cease smelting silicious silver ores and use as a substitute the Cripple Creek silicious gold ores. There is a good profit for the smelters on gold ores since they average to pay $19 per ounce for the gold, leaving a clear margin of $1.93½ per ounce, which added to their smelting charge of from $16 to $18 per ton is sufficient inducement for them to run a few furnaces in preference to blowing out entirely. It is business to get the bullion out of the ore, and have it ready to ship as soon as silver recovers, which is sure to come."

"I believe that the shutting down of silver properties will lead to many miners going into Cripple Creek. This means greater development for that district in the next year than it would get in two under ordinary circumstances. The dozen mills in the camp can take care of all low grade ore and mill dirt for the present. It is an ill wind that blows no good, and Cripple Creek stands to be benefited now. The fact that it is a great gold camp and has wonderful mines is sufficient to guarantee that Cripple Creek will be prosperous in this age of gold. I have nothing to sell but am willing to hold onto my interests there in stocks and prospects, being confident that a busy time is in store for us all up there. At the present time the town of Cripple Creek is quiet but get out into the hills with me and I will show you life and business where they should be, in the mines and prospects. I stay with Cripple Creek every time."

Forest Fire.

Early Sunday morning a fire broke out in the forest in the mountains north west of the city. It is said to be just above Barr Artist. The flames are still raging and last night could be plainly seen from the city. As usual no one seems to know how the fire originated, but it is probable some strong effort will be made to find out. This is one of the most beautifully wooded portions of the mountains and the destruction of the timber is a great loss. It is fortunate that high winds have not been prevailing of late or the damage might be large.

Denver Smith in the City.

Pat Smith, the pugilist, who whipped Goddard at New Orleans last winter, and known throughout the country as Denver Smith, has been in the city for the past week, accompanied by Peter Maher, the Irish champion. Smith has been training for his fight with Reddy Gallagher in Denver to-night. They left for Denver last evening and will return here to-morrow. Smith yesterday said that he believes that he can whip Corbett if he will only give him a chance, and that he has the money to back himself. He claims the championship belt on account of his challenges to Corbett and says for will give it to him. Peter Maher won his fight in Chicago last week. Both men belong in the heavyweight class. They have had rooms in the Park block during their stay here. Smith has no fear for the outcome of his bout with Gallagher to-night.

MANITOU NOTES.

The 5 cent rate to any part of the city will not prevail among hackmen for the next three days.

Manitou's police force on the 4th, 5th and 6th will consist of Marshal Elerick and nine deputies.

A Raymond excursion in charge of C. W. Smith came in last evening and put up at Hotel Barker.

An ordinance is now pending in the town council, which removes back stands from all the depots.

Mrs. Mollie Jeffreys and daughter Mamie of Gonzales, Tex., have come to the Barker to spend the season.

John Davies, wife and daughter of Rochester are at the Norris and will remain until after the tournament.

Mr. L. M. Prince, wife and child, of Cincinnati, O., have taken apartments at the Manitou House for the summer.

The St. Elmo has made special arrangements to serve meals and short orders promptly during the tournament.

John Leonard is now soliciting for the Cave of the Winds. Johnnie has the tact of turning people in the right direction.

This will be a memorable Fourth in Manitou. Let the flag fly, the eagle scream and the athlete cover himself with well-earned glory.

Beecher Davis says to the extent of $50 that he can go to the top of Red Mountain and return quicker than anybody else. Stafford House denies it to the same extent. It will be decided on Thursday evening at 5:30.

Captain Baker of London, leaving the Sunny Side at 5:30 a. m., went to the summit of Pike's Peak and returned at 1 p. m. This is the fastest record of the season.

M. Konsmino and Michael Karatinev of St. Petersburg, commissioners to the World's Fair, are now at the Manitou house. Mr. Karatinev's wife accompanies him.

Mr. N. Wagner and wife of Chicago are recent arrivals at the Buxton. Mr. Wagner is a stock dealer in the Western metropolis.

The rules barring professional runners who are not regular members of a hose team will be strictly enforced by the Board of Control of the Fireman's Tournament.

The Graham house has made extraordinary preparation in the way of short orders and regular meals to feed the hungry multitudes for the next three succeeding days.

A special car leaves Manitou at 7 o'clock every evening over the Colorado Springs Rapid Transit line for the Broadmoor Casino and returning leaves the Casino at 11 o'clock.

Messrs. Medley & Vandeman, who run a lunch counter at the Manitou end of the Rapid Transit line, are well patronized because everything is first class and prices are reasonable. Pies, cakes, etc., are home made.

Mr. E. W. Major and wife of Bowling Green, Mo., and Miss Gertrude Meyer of San Francisco were among the guests of the Buxton house who yesterday viewed the glories of Pike's Peak from its summit. They traveled over the highest railway on earth.

REMARKABLE DISTRIBUTION OF Standard Books!

AT NOMINAL PRICES,

And that can only be made possible by our co-operation for the benefit of our readers. These books cannot be obtained at less than wholesale price in any other way than as described below.

WE take pleasure in announcing to our readers that we have made a contract whereby we can furnish them with standard books at absolutely less than wholesale prices. The books which we offer each week are by world famous writers and are printed from absolutely new type made specially for these works. The books are bound by an entirely new process which does away with the old style of thread or wire binding. Each leaf is bound into the book separately and amalgamated with the whole, allowing the book to lay perfectly flat when open, giving ease and comfort to the reader.

Each week we will announce a new book. Save your coupons as we will be sure to announce books which you will not fail to order.

WE CHANGE NUMBER EVERY ISSUE.

Book Coupon No. 17.
